

Selling Stock Photography – <http://www.dreamstime.com>

Photographers worldwide make a comfortable living through the sales of their professional photography. Not only are photographers in demand for weddings and other family and social occasions, but they are also in very high demand on the worldwide web! In addition, there are monetary benefits to selling professional photography on the internet, but choosing which company to sell your stock photos through is a critical decision that should be thoroughly thought out. There are hundreds of online stock photography websites but, most of them are amateur sites and not worth your time. After doing some due diligence to find one of the best companies in the industry, we discovered a company out of Tennessee, DreamsTime.com.

They are one of the top microstock photography companies on the worldwide web and present an excellent opportunity for professional designers and photographers to contribute their unique work to. From their roots in 2004, DreamsTime grew in a mere four years to a professional microstock photography provider that currently has over one million registered users on their website. Additionally, they have over 50,000 dedicated photographers who have marketed and contributed over four million professional stock images to DreamsTime! With this in mind, there is definitely an opportunity to get involved as a contributor of professional photography at DreamsTime.com and make decent money in the process.

Registration with Dreamstime.com as a photographer is completely free. At the time of registration, you are given the opportunity to upload some of your professional images at which time they will take the time to personally review your photos for potential inclusion into their website. If for any reason your stock photography is not accepted, you (designers) are notified as to what the reason is and given the opportunity to resubmit! What they are really looking for is high quality, non-pixelated quality photography. The minimum image quality they are requesting is three megapixels but if you really want to make the best impression, you really should upload photography that is between five to ten megapixels in quality. As a photographer, you know the true secret to success is to provide high quality photography that is truly unique and not something that everyone else has to offer.

As a company, Dreamstime touts a great reputation and shares a considerable amount of commissions with their photographers. A stock photographer selling on Dreamstime.com has the potential to make anywhere between fifty to eighty percent (with royalties) commission from the sale of his or her photos. With some stock photos grabbing the attention of thousands and grabbing thousands of downloads, some talented photographers are bagging quite a large paycheck for their quality work.

With photographers turning to the internet to market their quality photography, there is not many companies that offer you a one million user database of potential buyers of your unique photography. For any serious photographer, DreamsTime.com makes an excellent home to marketing professional microstock photography. With no cost to join and an incredible opportunity to represent your stock photography to over one million people worldwide, check out DreamsTime.com today. As a leader in their industry, they
